Faunistic records of Depressariidae (Lepidoptera, Gelechioidea) from Turkey - a result of studies for „Microlepidoptera of Europe: Depressariinae“

Peter Buchner ¹

Abstract: Faunistic records of Depressariidae (Lepidoptera, Gelechioidea) from Turkey - a result of studies for „Microlepidoptera of Europe: Depressariinae“. Cesa News 134: 1-34.

Faunistic records of 63 species of Depressariidae are presented. Totally 33 of them are new for the fauna of Turkey. Besides, numerous provincial new records are mentioned. Additionally, collecting information, including all label data are given to each species. Moths of each, and genitalia of 50 species are illustrated. To some species comments on determination and/or distribution are also added.

Keywords: Lepidoptera, Depressariidae, Depressariinae, Agonopterix, Depressaria, Exaeretia, fauna, Turkey.

Introduction

Depressariidae as a family initially included the genera Semioscopis, Luquetia, Levipalpus, Exaeretia, Agonopterix and Depressaria (Depressariidae Meyrick, 1883). According to van Nieukerken et al. (2011) it became a subfamily of the Elachistidae, before being reduced to a tribe (Depressariini, subfamily Depressariinae, Elachistidae). Heikkilä et al. (2014) again separate Depressariinae from Elachistidae and propose a wider concept of Depressariidae. Here this view is followed.

Author's work on Depressariidae started 2010 as a co-author of "Microlepidoptera of Europe [ME]: Depressariidae". Specimens of many collections had been checked, here only listed if specimens of Turkey are found within: NHMV (Natural History Museum Vienna, Austria), TLMF (Tiroler Landesmuseum Ferdinandea, Innsbruck, Austria), ZSM (Zoologische Staatsammlung München, Germany) ZMUC (Zoological Museum, University of Copenhagen, Denmark), MHNG

(Muséum d'histoire naturelle de la Ville de Genève, Switzerland), the private collections of Knud Larsen (Denmark), Günther Baisch (Germany), Cs. Szabóky (Hungary), Jari Junnilainen and Kari Nupponen (Finland).

To study species, which are found only very rare in Europe, because they have the focus of their distribution area outside of Europe, also a lot of material from Asia had been checked. This examination resulted in records of 63 species of Depressariinae (genera Agonopterix, Depressaria and Exaeretia) from Turkey, which are presented here.

All species of Depressariidae are listed, whether they are frequent or rare, in an alphabetic order. All specimens studied by the author have an individual number, which starts with „DEEUR“ („Depressariidae of Europe“). This number had been added both to the faunistic records (after the collecting date) and to the photos (as an insert). All determinations, slides and photos made by the author, if not specified. Records without DEEUR-number had not been checked by the author, if not mentioned separately.

New faunistical records for Turkey are marked with “*” (Koçak & Kemal, 2009).

Faunistic records

1. Agonopterix adspersella (Kollar, 1832)

NW Turkey, Bolu Province, Fakilar geçidi, 1100m, 30 6 1987, ♀, GP DEEUR 2354, leg. M. Fibiger, coll. ZMUC
S Turkey, Urfa Province, Euphrat valley 8 km N of Halfeti, 500m, 25 5 1990, ♀, GP DEEUR 4144, leg. & coll. Cs. Szabóky

These records are new to Bolu and Urfa Provinces (Koçak & Kemal, 2009).

17. Agonopterix lituosa (Haworth, [1811])*

N Turkey, Amasya Province, Sakarat Dağı near Karataş, 1700m, DEEUR 3177, 24.7.1998, leg. & coll. K. Larsen
E Turkey, Erzincan Province, Kalecik, 1600m, 15.7.2000, DEEUR 3318, leg. & coll. K. Larsen

These records are also new to Amasya and Erzincan Provinces (Koçak & Kemal, 2009). Genitalia not clearly different from those of Agonopterix conterminella, better determinable externally by yellow thorax and more bright reddish brown ground colour of forewings. Biology may also help: A. lituosa lives on Hypericum, A. conterminella on Salix. In cases of doubt, DNA examination can clarify the determination.

24. Agonopterix rotundella (Douglas, 1846)

N Turkey, Amasya Province, Ak Dağ, 1950m, 20. 7 2000, DEEUR 2325, leg. & coll. K. Larsen

Most similar to Agonopterix nodiflorella and not recognizable from this species by dissection. It is easily distinguished externally: A. rotundella has only a single central dot, while in A. nodiflorella usually there are two dots. Foodplant is also different: Daucus (A. rotundella) and Ferula (A. nodiflorella). Worn specimens may be only determinable by DNA-examination.

A. scopariella is the commonest Agonopterix-species in mediterranean area in Europe, and likely in Turkey as well. Usually it is easily recognizable by the combination of complete central forewing pattern (that means two pairs of dots on each forewing: two oblique dots consisting of black and white elements at 1/3 and also two such dots at 1/2) and outer forewing margin straight or even concave. Sometimes it is confused with A. subpropinquella, but this species has no white elements in forewing dots.

These records are new to Ankara and Giresun Provinces (Koçak & Kemal, 2009).

The description of Depressaria pseudobadiella had created a somewhat strange situation, because it can be distinguished from D. badiella only by female, but not by male genitalia or external features (Nel, 2011). Therefore all males are omitted from this list. So D. badiella may appear as rare, although it is a common and widespread species.

Hannemann depicts male genitalia with such distinct biforked cuiller under Depressaria beckmanni Heinemann, 1870. But he had not seen the type of D. beckmanni (Hannemann, 1953), which is obviously lost. Therefore, Hannemann's interpretation of „D. beckmanni“ seems doubtful.

 E Turkey, Ağrı Province, 15 km E Horasan, 1500m, 15.6.1991, DEEUR 4100, leg. & coll. Cs. Szabóky

The present records are also new to Kayseri, Eskişehir, and Ağrı Provinces (Koçak & Kemal, 2009). A distinct species, dissection not needed for determination

Fig. 62 Exaeretia niviferella. Upperside male (wingspan 21 mm) Eskişehir Province, 10 km E Eskişehir, 28.5.1964, DEEUR 0844, leg. J. Klimesch, coll. ZSM

63. Exaeretia thurneri (Rebel, 1941)*

NE Turkey, Gümüşhane Province, Şiran, 1300m, 24.7.1993, DEEUR 3384, leg. & coll. K. Larsen

The present record is also new to Gümüşhane Province (Koçak & Kemal, 2009).

This species can be safely determined by its distinct wing patterns rather than by genitalic dissection.

Genitalia mismatch by Hannemann had caused the publication of this taxon as „Agonopterix thurneri“ (Hannemann, 1953, repeated in Hannemann, 1995). Subsequently, he described E. thurneri as Exaeretia nigromaculata (Hannemann, 1989). The situation had been clarified by studying the types and associated genitalia slides (Buchner, 2015b)

Fig. 63 Exaeretia thurneri. Upperside male (forewing 9 mm, estimated wingspan 20 mm) Gümüşhane Province, Şiran, 1300m, 24.7.1993, DEEUR 3384, leg. & coll. K. Larsen

Acknowledgement

I am grateful to the following people who have assisted in various ways: Dr Martin Lödl and Dr Sabine Gaal-Haszler (NHMV), Dr Peter Huemer (TLMF), Dr Andreas Segerer (ZSM), Dr Ole Karsholt (ZMUC) and Dr Bernhard Landry (MHNG) for support in studying the material of the institutions, all private collectors mentioned in introduction to give access to his collections, Jari Junnilainen for additional records and Prof. Dr. Ahmet Ö. Koçak for helpful comments, corrections and the offer to publish in this paper.
